Kerry Brown is a mediator, facilitator, and trainer of conflict management skills and processes. Kerry works with organizations and public stakeholders who are looking to successfully resolve issues and manage conflict. This work includes public consultation, facilitation of multi-stakeholder groups, mediation, designing conflict management processes, and training in conflict resolution. Some of her clients include the National Energy Board, the Alberta Energy and Utilities Board, Alberta Municipal Affairs, Alberta Agriculture Products Marketing Council, Southern Alberta Alternative Energy Partnership, and the Bolivia Canada Hydrocarbon Project. Kerry instructs in the Conflict Resolution certificate program for the Justice Institute of British Columbia (U of C). Kerry participated actively in the Company to Company Dispute Resolution Task Force and continues to participate in Synergy Alberta.

Prior to starting Moving Forward Inc., Kerry worked in the energy industry for eighteen years holding management and executive positions. Kerry was raised on a farm at Acme Alberta and maintains a continuing interest in agriculture and agricultural issues.
